UNROMANTIC HYGIENE—2

Breakfast Food

The force of practical psychology constrains many people to take their breakfasts, biscuit or rolls fried, if they prefer carbohydrate in that form, well and good. Perhaps it serves to keep more money in circulation. At any rate it encourages the psychologists and saves the host some labor. But poor folks should lose no sleep worrying about the amount of money in circulation. Let people who buy gasoline, fancy furs, $12 shoes and such things take care of that. Poor folks should rather contrive how much money they can keep out of circulation without injury to themselves.

Long ago a young woman told us, on the occasion of her seventy-fifth birthday, how to use plain wheat, the kind farmers grow, you know, as a combination breakfast food and preventive of the great American ailment, constipation. We printed the young woman's contribution here, our more desperate readers may recall. She advised that the family purchase from some farmer a bag or bushel of plain wheat, the natural stuff which farmers manufacture with the threshing machine. This wheat was to be rinsed in cold water, and then cooked in double boiler, three hours, or an hour on three successive days, or four or five hours in a fireless cooker, and served as breakfast food. Besides its wholesome, appetizing character the dish is economical, since the honest farmer does not mix any lavender, cardboard or other decorations in the wheat. Personally, I take my breakfast food in the form of bread and butter or toast, and never eat a breakfast food. But once in a while or as often as you like this crude wheat makes a real treat.

Speaking of breakfast food, ham and eggs, mince pie and other favorites save only coffee must give way to the most healthful and needful of all such foods, namely, fresh fruit. Fresh fruit should be the beginning of every child's breakfast, the half of every sedentary adult's breakfast, and the mainstay of every invalid's breakfast. Fresh fruit is generally rich in vitamins, those as yet unidentified accessory factors which we know are essential for normal growth and nutrition. Fresh fruit supplies needed alkaline salts—even the "acid" fruits are valuable for this purpose—to the blood, opposing acidosis and so-called autointoxication and aiding in the various functions of elimination. The fruit may be cooked or raw, only so it is fresh. Canned fruit, after a certain time at least, seems to have lost its vitamins.

Coffee is a great blessing for the majority of people; a stimulant with no after-depression; a drink of concentrated cheer without a single regret. Coffee is not a beverage for children under 16, for children need no nerve stimulant. It is sometimes objectionable for certain invalids. For the rest of us coffee, at breakfast, adds materially to the joy of living.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Dietetic Data.

1. Is it a good habit to drink hot milk before retiring at night? 2. There are any objection to drinking milk at a meal when you have eaten grapefruit, provided you have felt no effects from so doing for years past? (S. V. R.)

ANSWER—1. Yes, if you wish. 2. No. Milk and grapefruit or lemon or orange are not ordinarily an appetizing mixture, but if you like them at the same meal there is no sound objection, only a plausible or theoretical objection. I have often tasted "food specialists."

Would malted milk help me to gain 25 pounds? I am about 35 pounds underweight. Could you tell me how to make malted milk at home? (Mrs. C. S.)

ANSWER—Fresh raw milk would be a great deal better for the purpose if you will drink a pint of fresh milk every forenoon and another pint every afternoon, midway between meals. You should gain the 25 pounds in a year.

Heart and Home Problems

By ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl nearly sixteen. My mother is very strict with my brothers and me and will not let me go anywhere without a pany or go any places. I cannot dress as finely as I should like, for mamma chooses all my clothes and they are always plain. I have been left us plenty of money and don't you think I am old enough to choose my own clothes?

At school I seem to be more popular with boys than girls, but that is not my fault for I try to be nice to both. I have been going with a boy several times which is letting my mother know. The last time he kissed me several times and I didn't stop him for I thought he was all right, but I found out that he is not a gentleman. Now the other boys grin at me as if I were a joke. They never did before. Do you suppose he told them things about me that are not true?

I have always minded my mother before and it is hard, for she wants me to be just so all the time and I am afraid to tell her this. She whips my brothers terribly when they don't mind.

What shall I do? I don't speak to the boy any more. I didn't do anything really wrong and I don't want people to think bad things of me. I don't want to go with a boy ever again. (L. A. C. 12, J. L.)

A mistake should be a blessing. Profit by it and never make the same mistake twice. You have learned now that it is not pleasant to have it known that you have permitted a young man to kiss you. Whenever you do something you are not sure is right, ask yourself if you would be willing to have others see you do it. Since your mother would punish you for something you already regret do not mention the matter to her. In the future be more willing to accept her advice about the young men you choose for friends and the things you do with them.

Your mother shows good taste by insisting upon simple clothes. People of refinement, no matter how well to do, dress their sixteen-year-old daughters with simplicity.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl nineteen years of age. Every night and sometimes every other night, my steady fellow has to work and he expects me to stay home when he is working. Do you think it is all right for me to have other company while he works, if I am willing to be with him when he does not work? Other fellows call me up to see me, but I am afraid he will get angry. Please advise me. (KORBIN.)

At the age of nineteen I think you should go with various young men and not have a "steady fellow". Refuse to be engaged since you do not love the young man enough to want to give up all others for him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl seventeen and I am not allowed to go to dances. I am the only one out of a crowd of five who is not allowed to go. How can I persuade my folk to let me go?

Do you think it right to have dates with fellows you have never seen? A few days ago a fellow who must have heard of me called me up and wanted to come to see me. Should I allow him to come? (PERCILLA.)

You are too young to attend dances unless they are given at the high school, in which case I think it would be all right for you to go. Tell your parents that a girl in her junior year at high school is old enough to attend the school parties.

It is not all right to have dates

Mr. Blair calls the attention of the public to the fact that the building code took effect January 23, this year, and that permits are required on all construction jobs begun after that date. He directed attention further to section 9 of the ordinance which provides as follows:

"Before the erection, construction, or alteration of any building, wall, elevator, dumb waiter, hoist, bridge structure or equipment or part or parts thereof, and before the construction or alteration of any power, heating or lighting plant is commenced, the owner or persons contemplating such work shall submit to the building inspector a detailed statement of the specifications, and an estimate of the cost; provided, however, that this section shall not apply to the erection or construction of any building or structure where the total cost of such work does not exceed $100."

NEWSPAPER JUDGES VALUE OF ITS NEWS

Chicago, April 12.—The right of a newspaper to publish what it considers news and to disregard what it believes does not come within that category was upheld Monday night in an opinion of the appellate court, disposing of a $100,000 damage suit, brought by William Reeda, attorney, against the Tribune company.

Mr. Reeda, who was a candidate for superior court judge in the November, 1917, election on an independent ticket, charged the Chicago Tribune with publishing a facsimile of a portion of a specimen ballot, giving the names of the democratic, republican and socialist candidates for the judgeship, but omitting the names of the independent candidates.

It was contended by Mr. Reeda that this omission was "wilful and malicious, and done with intent to injure his candidacy."

"The defendant owed no duty to either the plaintiff or the public to publish anything which, for any reason, it did not see fit to publish," the opinion read. "The defendant is the sole judge of the value of news as such. A newspaper must remain free to publish such matters as it regards as possessing news value, and to refrain from publishing such matters as it may determine does not possess news value."

GRAIN

Chicago, April 12.—Cattle: Underwent a material setback in price today. The weakness was due more to lack of support than to any great selling pressure. The market was still steady, but the outlook tended to make traders go slow for the time being. Initial quotations for choice steers ranged from $14.50 to $15.00, with May $14.50 and July $14.50. The market was followed by a reaction, but then by a decline further than before.

Oats sagged with corn. After operation unchanged, the market including July at $2.85, the market suffered a moderate general fall.

Following the decline in prices to packers had a depressing effect on provisions.

Steady but considerable stress on gossip that the west gave promise of recovering from the drought, and the corn market. Prices for wheat, rye and corn continued to fall.

Unsettled, but not lower to the advance, with May $1.85, and July $1.85.

FINANCE

New York, April 12.—In addition to the gains of 2 to 20 points, various issues which rumor announced with suspended animation, were taken up by pools on the stock market today.

High grade oil rose 2 to 3 points, shipments 2 to 7 and minor or independent steel and equipment 2 to 6.

Moore and the other subscribers were inclined to advance, but dealings in that group were relatively light and falls were altogether neglected. Foreign exchange was steadier and call money opened at 7 percent, but liberty bonds and Victory notes established new low records.

A gain of point for Royal Dutch and a reaction of 2 points for Texas company reflected the uneven course of prices at the dull opening of today's stock market. Trading continued to be influenced by the growth of the railroad strike and yesterday's higher rate for call money.

Sugar and affiliated specialties were again firm to strong, notably the general list. Moderately improved sugar stocks and equipment strengthening with further gains among the general list.

A break of 16 points in General Motors and a 10 percent money rate gain made much of the moderate setback, but this was largely overcome in the final dealings. The closing was firm.

Liberty Bonds.
